

April 2020 Issue

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE...

IFMA Richmond,

WOW! What a difference a few weeks can make. We are in the middle of global pandemic. Unprecedented times for all of us. As we navigate this difficult time, I encourage all of you to stay positive. If you watch 10 minutes of the news between the virus to the stock market all the reports are bleak. Without a clear path to recovery we are being told to distance ourselves from others to avoid spreading the virus. Not to go to any large gatherings or visit our favorite watering hole. As a wise old man is quoted as saying "this too shall pass". I would remind you all that we will find an immunization to this and life will return to normal. Please help thy neighbor when you can and keep washing your hands and navigate social interactions with care.

With that being said, based on the Governor's and President's messages about social distancing, and maintaining less than groups of 10 people, we have decided to cancel our April monthly membership meeting. We are working to put together a May meeting with the understanding that meeting could also be canceled if the current environment does not change.

Stay tuned for additional information on upcoming meetings. Also, you can follow us on Linked In and Twitter @ifmarva for the most updated info on events and chapter news.

Thank you!

-Blake

AROUND THE CHAPTER

by Bud Vye, Retired CFM

Saddened to see the obituary recently of new member Sherwood Cosby's father. Sherwood and his wife Cindy have been with us at several meetings over the past few years and we share our condolences with him on the loss of his dad.

Also noted that the Quirk Hotel in Charlottesville opened recently, almost exactly four years after we met at the one on Broad St. in Richmond back in 2016. A few more rooms (80 vs. 74) than the one in Richmond, but many of the same features (art gallery & retail shop, roof top bar, slated to open after the weather gets a little warmer, art by local artists in every room, same chef for the restaurant as down here, but it's named the Pink Grouse instead of the Maple & Pine as owners Katie & Ted Ukrop again contribute a lot of their quirky ideas to the $12 million project, which is again designed by Danny MacNelly of ArchitectureFirm. Sounds like a good project to send Bob Borchers to check out and give us a first hand report on.

A real bummer as the virus pandemic results in the cancellation of March Madness at Creative, ending our chances to see how the U of R and UVA can finish their seasons, and how Corine Harvey's grandson Chris Lykes can close out his excellent season for the U of Miami as one of the top players in the ACC.

MARCH MEETING REPORT

by Ashley Hawks Medlin

Our March 2020 membership meeting was a first since 2003 for the Richmond chapter: a lunch meeting. Thirty Six IFMA members and colleagues met at the Heilman Dining Hall on University of Richmond's campus on a spring-like day and feasted like well-fed college students. Most of the students were home on spring break, while a few remained, including a few students who needed to stay in the United States since their home countries were battling COVID-19. We had our pick of the entire cafeteria and enjoyed an hour of good food and networking before McKinley Wood, Facilities Manager for the University of Richmond, joined us to lead us on our tour across campus to the steam plant.

On our way, we stopped in the "Forum", a patio/walking space between the Westhampton Lake, Heilman Dining Hall, Cannon Memorial Chapel, Gottwald Center for the Sciences, and Tyler Haynes Commons.

Mr. Wood told us some very interesting facts about the school and the campus, including a little piece of history: that the University used to, in fact, be located near downtown Richmond, and what is now near the Jefferson Hotel and the heart of VCU. The school moved to its current location next to the Country Club of Virginia in the early 1900's.

Our next stop on the tour was the campus steam plant where maintenance faculty are currently undergoing a massive overhaul of one of the old coal-fed steam boilers. The boilers were installed in the 1950s to replace a hot water distribution system that was the campus primary heating system. The new steam boilers were to distribute medium pressure steam throughout the campus via a tunnel network to either steam appliances or steam to water converter appliances. The original primary fuel for the boilers, particularly the one we are removing, was coal which was direct delivered via train to the plant. The rails for the cargo car are still installed but under dirt, grass, and asphalt. The team at the steam plant would spend most of their days shoveling coal and stoking the system to get the steam pressure up to design. The secondary fuel was #6 diesel oil which was not used as much as coal because of the disparity in price.

In the early 2000s the steam plant converted all boilers to natural gas as a result of student activism and concern over emissions from the coal fired boilers. Even though a baghouse (think big filter) was installed to curb a lot of the pollution, the University decided to comply and used the event as a teaching point on the importance of citizen participation and activism. The current lineup of 4 boilers consist of two tri-fuel capable boilers at approximately 600 hp each and 2 bi-fuel boilers of approximately 650 hp each. The burners on the boilers have a turndown ratio of 4:1. The #3 boiler, which is being replaced due to internal fracturing of the combustion chamber, is being replaced with a lower, 400 hp, boiler with a turn down ratio of around 10:1 and will see duty primarily in the summer months as the demand for steam (once all Steam Absorption Chillers are replaced with York Centrifugal and student departure) has reduced over the years. The mechanics at the steam plant are charged with removal of the existing #3 boiler with their organic in-house labor and the install of the replacement system may fall to them as well with the addition of a factory supported startup.

The tour of the plant was absolutely astonishing to see, and the Richmond chapter of IFMA is extremely grateful to the University for allowing our group an inside look of the retrofit.
